For Thin, Poor Blood

You can trust a medicine tested 60 years! Sixty years of experience, think of that! Experience with Ayer's Sarsaparilla; the original Sarsaparilla; the Sarsaparilla the doctors endorse for thin blood, weak nerves, general debility.

But even this grand old medicine cannot do its best work if the liver is inactive and the bowels constipated. For the best possible results, you should take laxative doses of Ayer's Pills while taking the Sarsaparilla.

Was Favorably Impressed.

A few years ago when Sam Jones was here, in riding around over the town he remarked that Scotland Neck had more pretty residences and more pretty flowers than any town of its size that he had been in. It is pleasing to find the following in the Roanoke-Chowan Times:

"Mr. R. H. Stanford went to Scotland Neck last week to see about a building contract offered him in that town. Mr. Stanford has traveled extensively from the Atlantic to the Pacific, having lived in Texas and California, and being a builder and contractor naturally takes note of buildings and says Scotland Neck has some of the nicest and most up-to-date business buildings of any town its size he ever saw. He was favorably impressed with Scotland Neck, but there is such a demand for buildings in Northampton he decided he could not take a contract in Scotland Neck at this time."

Moved Their Offices.

Mess Kitchen and Smith have moved their law office from the Scotland Neck hotel to their new quarters in the new Commercial and Planters bank building. Mess. Kitchen and Whitley have moved their law office from the Josoy building to the building in which Dr. Smith's office has been.

Dr. Smith will soon move his office to the new bank building. Also Mr. Albion Dunn has moved his law office from the Biggs and Johnson building to the Dr. J. P. Wimberly new office building near Mrs. Kate Dunn's on same street.

How to Open a Can of Salmon.

To open a can of Argo Red Salmon properly, lay the can on its side, insert the can opener at the seam, then stand the can on end, and pressing the top firmly down, work the can opener around the top, removing the entire top. The Argo will then come out in one solid piece.

Fire Company Will Meet.

The Scotland Neck fire company is called to meet in the Josoy Hardware Store to-morrow night (Thursday 18th) at 7:30 o'clock.

It is important that every member of the company be present.

Soon after the fire at Shiloh colored church some weeks ago the colored people sent a communication to this paper thanking the fire company for the prompt service which saved their church. By reason of the sickness of the editor it was misplaced until too late for publication.

FROM SOUTH AMERICA.

Mr. Ashley Bryan Makes Interesting Observations on a Trip to the Far South—The Places Visited and the People Seen There.

Mr. Ashley Bryan some weeks ago was sent by the Atlantic De Forest Wireless Company from New York to Puerto Rico and South America to test the system.

In a letter to his father, Mr. G. W. Bryan, of Scotland Neck, he gives interesting description of some of the places he has visited. Through the courtesy of Mr. Bryan we have read the letter and make extracts from it. The letter is dated Curacao, March 23th.

SAN JUAN.

Of San Juan he says: San Juan contains about twenty-five or thirty thousand people and is a hustling place. From what I can judge the United States has been successful with the colony. The buildings are all nearly the same height and are not built like houses in America, but they all look "cool," which is the main thing there. The streets are narrow but all paved and clean. The most interesting places are the plazas, which correspond to our small parks in America. In the day time it is unpleasantly hot, but the nights are fine. Every one dresses up as soon as the sun goes down and all flock to the plazas where politics and all other questions are discussed. The city is patrolled by native police, but there are many Americans always around. Most of the natives speak English, which is taught in all the schools. San Juan also has electric lights, water works and street cars. While I was there I took a trip out to the great wireless station, which is one of the best. They told me that they heard me working the night we left New York and kept up with me the whole way. The distance from Sandy Hook to San Juan is 1280 miles.

AT CURACAO.

We left San Juan on the 22nd and arrived here (Curacao) on the 24th.

Curacao is a Dutch possession and is very characteristic of the Dutch. The town is not quite as large as San Juan, nor is it as lively. The buildings are all made of plaster, two stories high with an additional story in the roof. They are nearly all painted light yellow or sky blue with red tiled roof. English, Spanish and Dutch are spoken here. In many cases when I address a person in Spanish he will answer me in English.

PEOPLE DIFFER IN COLOR.

The people at every port where we have stopped are of different shades of color. Here most of them are very black, but in San Juan and Venezuela some are very light and some very dark.

From Curacao we went to La Guayra, Venezuela.

La Guayra is a small place at the foot of the mountains which rise to a height of nine thousand feet right up from the water. This place was by far the most monotonous stop of all. The scenery was beautiful but the town was dirty and unattractive.

From La Guayra we went to Puerto Cabello, the most important sea coast town in Venezuela. This place was interesting and I enjoyed one day there loading coffee and hides. From Puerto Cabello we came to Curacao.

RETURN SCHEDULE.

Our present schedule is as follows: Leave here (Curacao) Sunday night, the 31st, arrive La Guayra morning of the 1st. We unman at La Guayra and leave for San Juan. There we will remain a day. We will leave then for New York which we should reach the 9th.

A NEGRO AT DINNER.

I had an experience yesterday that will probably surprise you as it did me when I found out what I had done. There are no passengers on the ship now and yesterday the Captain had several friends to take dinner on the ship. Among them was the American Consul, who is no other than a New York negro. He seemed well educated and neat, and was so much like the natives it would have been hard to tell the difference.

Death of Mrs. W. T. Jenkins.

The many friends of Capt. W. T. Jenkins, of Aurelian Springs in this county, will regret to learn of the death of his good wife. She died April 10th, and her remains were taken to Littleton for interment.

She was a most excellent christian lady and her death is a great loss to her community.

Called Home by the Death of Her Brother.

Miss Nannie Leach, teacher of the seventh grade in the graded school, received a telegram Saturday morning stating that her brother, Mr. Carl Leach, was killed the day before in Newman, Ga. There were no particulars of his death except that he was killed by a train.

Miss Leach left at once for her home near McCullers in Wake county to attend the funeral. The sad and sudden news was a severe stroke to Miss Leach, and her many friends here keenly sympathize with her in the sore bereavement.

Fire in Enfield.

The following news items from Enfield appeared in Sunday's News and Observer:

"Enfield, N. C., April 13.—Wednesday afternoon sparks from a defective flue set fire to the store building on Railroad street occupied by the general merchandise establishment of W. S. Shields. The fire, which began under the roof, had made some headway when discovered, and threatened a long line of adjacent buildings which were exposed to flying sparks.

"The fire companies were soon on the scene and at work, the bucket brigade holding the flames in check until the engines were put in operation. As soon as the streams of water were turned upon the building, the blaze was quickly extinguished. "The damage of the building was small and fully covered by insurance. W. S. Shields, J. Britt, W. O. Smith, and the law firm of Day, Bell and Dunn, sustained some damage from removal of goods. These losses are also covered."

"Mr. W. Rice sustained a painful injury Tuesday afternoon. While doing some work on the fire engine, his left thumb was caught between the moving engine and the door of the engine house, and was pinched off just back of the nail. The wound was promptly dressed and at this time seems to be healing as rapidly as could be expected."

Miss Upperman to Wed.
